About app-permissions related to ‘Your Personal Information’:

1) Add or modify calendar events and send email to guests without owners’ knowledge
In technical terms this permission is called “Write Calendar”, which is to grant the write access to a user’s calendar, so that V-Network can add events to your calendar. The term ‘sending emails behind your back’ is technically only an implicit consequence of the “Write Calendar” permission, and is not and won’t be done by V-Network.

2) Read calendar events plus confidential information
In technical terms this permission is called “Read Calendar”, which is to grant the read access to a user’s calendar. V-Network needed the rights to view and edit an already created calendar event on user’s calendar. Under no circumstances will V-Network “read your confidential information” and pass it on to anybody.
